

On July 21, 1997 at 11:00 PM David Berman wrote this about Patti Shock (in alt.vacation.las-vegas). This was long before the Bermans moved to SCA.

"I'm sure many of you have seen occasional informative posts from Patti Shock here on the newsgroup.

Patti is a tourism professor (yes, there's such a title) at UNLV.

On Monday (7/21), the Review-Journal reported that one of Patti's Web sites was one of four winners in a Web-stie contest hosted by the television show, "The Site," on cable channel MSNBC.

This particular site showcases "Wacky Hospitality Sites" on the Web. It is not a Las Vegas-related site per se, but there is a small amount of Las Vegas content on it.

Check it out at:

<http://www.nscee.edu/unlv/Tourism/wacky.html>

Advisory: You may find that this site downloads very slowly, as it is unusually rich with graphics and animations. But it's lots of fun.

Congratulations, Patti!! Maybe you'll let us come by and meet you, maybe do an interview, on our next visit in December.

--Best wishes from David in MA "