I am flabbergasted over the news that Bob Frank has a previously undisclosed relationship with the Goff's. So, not only were the Petschauer's undisclosed friends with the owners of Boulevard Grill, Bob Frank AND his supporters were adamant at shutting LuvRules out during Trumpets Working Group meetings and even boycotted their tasting. .

I have been vilified and called a liar by Kathy Matson. Guess what? LuvRules investors are real, and David Moore is already evaluating several new location options – where he won't have to deal with the nasty people that live up here. Of course, the investors weren't going to just hand David Moore a check without seeing the lease provisions. That is not good business sense. To treat David Moore so badly after he, in good faith, spent over $5000 to provide an outstanding tasting for you is not very professional.

As far as I am concerned, it is the community's loss that LuvRules will not be here. They would have provided an excellent restaurant with EXCELLENT food. I will let you know when their restaurant opens.

I would hope that Boulevard Grill would now be disqualified and a broker should be engaged to find a quality operator for our space.

I am just sorry that the hard-working, dedicated people in in the group - and I include myself here - wasted their time due to petty politics. I made the point several times that I was not political and did not want to become involved in the politics of the association. That worked out really well, don't you think? Except for meeting somegreat people, the experience was very negative,

I would also like to add, that there are all different levels of friends. I am not bosum buddies with the Bermans. We are more like friendly acquaintances. The initial years that we knew each other, they lived in Boston. We met on line in a group that discusses Las Vegas. I met them on one of their vacations here, where they put gatherings together for other people in the online group. He asked me to come and be a speaker on the restaurant scene in Las Vegas. At that time I was doing restaurant reviews for an online website. Since they moved here and prior to the forming of the TWG, I think I saw them a total of four times. Twice I had them down to lunch prepared in our student dining room, once they were at a party at my neighbors, and once I was at their home for bagels one morning. That is it. I like David and Roz. I think they are intelligent, caring people. There was no conspiracy. David Berman met David Moore for the first time when he did the walkthru of the Trumpets space.
